Dr. John Bancroft Devins, manwith the hope that this was to be the best Those present, many of whom were beginning their first season in the Fresh Air ork, were assured that they might expect a strenuous summer. There was no place, the speaker continued, in the crusade which they had undertaken for the person who was seeking a good time for himself. The greatest possible benefit for the chileren coming under the fund's care was declared to be the sole aim of the activities planned for the summer. This end was to be accomplished even at the sacrifice of the comfort or convenience of the workers. Solace for the workers was to be found, however, in the fact that the person who set out to provide a good time for another usually found one himself in

The greater number of those at the meetwere young men and young wo who were to have personal care of the children sent to the Tribune homes. For these Dr. Devins set up a standard for the treatment of the charges. Though these charges might be children of the very poor, poorly dressed and ignorant, they were not to be regarded as "kids," members of a social order lower than that of vounger brothers and sisters treated under like circumstances by others.
